

John 9:1-25

1. What stood out to you about the text? Was there anything you had not noticed before?
2. What does it mean to you to “proclaim good news?” Do you think much about this in your day-to-day life? Do you think this is a practice worth pursuing as a church community?
3. Think about the blind man’s proclamation. What makes it unique? Is it different from what you expect of a traditional testimony or sermon?
4. What “sacred stories” do you have in your life? What does it mean for us to practice telling and retelling those to one another? How does rehearsing sacred stories help us when we are trying to build relationships with those in the dotted and half circles?
